City girding for work stoppage

Contingency plan is to provide 'as much service as possible' says deputy mayor ◐ Local 416 to approach hockey league for support

Mayor Rob Ford's administration is determined to operate as many city services as possible — potentially even trash pickup — during an increasingly likely winter work stoppage.

Mark Ferguson, president of CUPE Local 416, said yesterday the city's contingency plan in case of a lockout or strike is rumoured to include curbside trash pickup and keeping open as many city-run arenas and daycares as possible.

A source with knowledge of the city's plans confirmed yesterday "the goal would be to minimize the impacts as much as possible," instead of a virtual shutdown of city services like that seen under Ford predecessor David Miller during the 39-day workers' strike in summer 2009.

Shielding Torontonians from the worst hassles would decrease pressure on the Ford administration to make concessions. City managers' first proposal to Local 416, delivered Oct. 19, includes scrapping ironclad job-security provisions, a 10 per cent cut in benefits and pages of other concessions.

"I would hope that they would not employ replacement workers, or scabs, because they only prolong a labour disruption."
MARK FERGUSON, PRESIDENT OF CUPE LOCAL 416

Rather than work on six-month contingency plans, Ferguson said, city management should "put its energy into replacing its unrealistic and reckless proposals with something that is the basis for discussion."

It is difficult to see how the Ford administration could run services as labour-intensive as trash pickup without hiring replacement workers — an explosive and unthinkable prospect under the left-leaning Miller.

Ferguson has broken with tradition and gone public with the city's demands barely two weeks into negotiations to replace a contract for the so-called "outside workers" that expires Dec. 31.

A strike or a lockout of Ferguson's members, plus the "inside workers" in Local 79, could happen as early as Jan. 19.

Ferguson said "we learned our lesson in 2009" and won't strike, but he expects his members to be locked out in February unless the city abandons its attempt to "gut" the contract. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Posters offer food for thought

When was the last time you were asked to care as much about bacon as you do about Fido, while sitting on the subway?

A group of 1,000 new posters on the TTC pits the mortality of pigs and cows and ducklings with that of puppies and kittens.

The goal is to get captive commuters thinking about what they're eating — and what they're not.

"We really wanted to be able connect people with these animals that are usually just dismissed as dinner," said Kimberly Carroll, one of two founders behind the ads being shown on Toronto subways until the end of the month.

"To have it loud and clear, right in front: Hey this dog and this pig — not so different."

After providing a list of reasons why the group feels the animals we eat are not that different to the ones we love with the fire of a thousand suns — pigs dream; are affectionate; know their own names — the ads go on to explain the process of factory farming.

According to Carroll, some 95 per cent of the animals we eat are factory-farmed in cramped conditions, leading to "short miserable lives" for the animals and unhealthy eating habits for humans.

The posters are part of a Be Vegetarian campaign, an effort started by Carroll and University of Toronto finance professor Lisa Kramer.

Long haul or end of the road?

About 500 occupiers in Toronto are well entrenched on land co-owned by the city and a church

Police crackdowns, court injunctions and warnings — around the world, the Occupy movement is being pushed and shoved.

In Toronto, protesters have dug in their heels and tents at St. James Park, co-owned by The Cathedral Church of St. James and the city, in preparation for a long haul. Will there be one?

Mayor Rob Ford has said he is "working on a plan" for the park. The mayor's office did not respond to a request for comment, but deputy mayor Doug Holyday said city staff are reviewing the situation.

"They've made their point," he said. "Now it's just them squatting in the park … that can't go forever. Over the next few weeks, we will see an end to this matter."

If the city does evict them, Anna Crooke, a movement spokeswoman, says there is a back-up plan firmly in place.

"We have been offered several venues in the downtown area," she said. "We would go there if evicted. But we won't stop this movement."

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Can the city evict?

- It's tough to say what the city can do without seeing ownership documents or legal statutes that may apply, said John Mascarin, a Toronto lawyer specializing in municipal law.
- A municipality, if it owns land, has a right to treat it as any other owner and could put restrictions on its use, he said.
- Complicating matters is the church, which has indicated it is not in favour of evicting the protesters.

Sitting pretty in Playboy Lingerie

- Toronto model lands big-time magazine cover
- 10-year career includes work as Naked News anchor

PHOEBE HO
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

Ashley Byford, a 27-year old-model from Toronto, has been hounded by her friends and family to 'spill the beans' after attending the infamous Halloween party at the Playboy Mansion.

Byford, who also goes by her Naked News anchor stage name Peyton Priestly, as well as Ashley Perry, was invited to the exclusive event in Los Angeles last month after landing a gig as Playboy's Lingerie October/November 2011 cover model.

"Meeting Johnny Drama from Entourage was the most memorable part of the night. I heard Lindsay Lohan was there, but I didn't see her so I don't know if that was a joke," she said. "We saw Hugh Hefner, of course, and I have to say he didn't exactly look happy. But I can't blame him, he's been doing this for many years now. I don't think I would be exactly chipper anymore either."

Moving from a small farming community in Picton, Ont., to Toronto at the age of 18 to make a go of her modelling career, Byford has stuck through her share of rough patches.

"It's not like a nine-to-five job; you don't wake up every morning and clock-in and clock-out. You may have steady jobs for weeks on end, then you can be totally dry for a month," she said.

And there were also some major setbacks along the way.

Byford tried to collect $25,000 for an informercial from her previous agency early on in her career, only to find that they had shut their doors.

"For a while, I kind of laid low. You don't know who to trust, you kind of put your faith and your trust in your agent, and when they don't have your back, it's a huge disappointment," said Byford.

Nudity factor

While nude modelling may be frowned upon by some, Ashley Byford says her family has been supportive in all the decisions she has made.

"My parents were never really sticklers or anything. I was never grounded or anything like that," she said. "I knew not to get out of line, but they never put such severe restrictions on me. So they kind of just let me do my own thing and I'm pretty thankful of that because they're pretty cool."

Even with the support of her family, it wasn't without some hesitance that she finally decided to try out for the Playboy cover.

"I think maybe I wasn't as excited as most people would be if they were asked to do it," said Byford. "For me, it was more of a financial thing. This was just another job for me, and if I could charge more money, then that's good for me."

DEAR OVER-CHARGED, UNDER-APPRECIATED, CONTRACT-LOATHING MOBILE PHONE CUSTOMERS.

Yes. You read that headline correctly.

And by "over-charged, under-appreciated, contract-loathing mobile phone customers" we mean a majority of all mobile customers in Canada.

On average, Canadians pay more than twice as much per minute than US mobile customers. Obviously this is something none of you are very happy about. But your collective grumblings haven't gone unheard. Over the past two years we at WIND Mobile have built our business by listening to your issues and then (surprisingly enough) adapting our offerings to meet your needs.*

- That means getting a $0 phone without being shackled to a painful 3-year term contract.
- That means knowing the distances between Canadians seem shorter if there are no long distance charges to pay on our network.
- That means we understand that the way to keep customers with us is not through restrictive contracts, but by offering fair pricing and transparent billing.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians have already turned to WIND. And with each new customer we get the opportunity to listen to a new voice of change. So join us as together we create the plans, the services and the pricing that you deserve.

Because that's the power of WIND.

Mourning a 'huge loss'

Cyclist Jenna Morrison was yoga teacher, mom Friends remember a spiritual person whose support helped her husband beat cancer

Talking to media

- Statement. The family will gather at the site of the tragedy today at 10 a.m. to give a statement and speak to the media.
- 'Powerful'. "It will be a powerful, emotional statement full of love," said Joey Gill, a family friend.
- Online. A Facebook page, In Loving Memory of Jenna, has been put up in her honour.
- Bike vigil. Dylan Kirk of Spiritwind Internal Arts said several public events will be held in the coming days, including a bike vigil a week after the tragedy.
- Trust. Kirk said plans are in the works to set up a trust fund for Jenna Morrison's son.

It was supposed to be the happiest of times for Jenna Morrison and her husband, Florian Schuck.

Together for a decade, they were life partners who rode out life's crises with love and commitment.

A yoga instructor, she was a spiritual person who supported her husband through a cancer fight a few years ago. He won the battle and continued his livelihood in production and design for film and television.

Nothing but promise lay ahead.

They had a five-year-old boy and a second child on the way.

But at 38, Morrison met with tragedy on a bicycle Monday morning, on her way to pick up little Lucas at school. Clipped by a truck as both made a right turn, she was pushed under the back wheels and died.

Florian is left to pick up the pieces, having to explain to his five-year-old son that mommy isn't coming home anymore and he won't have a brother or sister.

"She was a radiant, loving and incredibly spiritual woman," Joey Gill, a family friend, said in an interview. "It's a huge loss for everybody in her community."

Schuck was too devastated to speak yesterday, telling a reporter a family friend would speak for the family. Aron Slipacoff said family and friends were at the home last night, trying to comfort Schuck and his son, while Jenna's mother had flown in from Ottawa.

Morrison's various passions

Jenna Morrison started the yoga studio Pure Intent and sold it three years ago to Dylan Kirk, who continued to employ her at the renamed Spiritwind Internal Arts in Kensington Market.

She also worked as a Thai massage therapist and taught classes in other people's homes. A friend said she had helped organize the Toronto Yoga Festival.

Morrison had been a dancer all her life, learning various techniques including classical ballet, highland Scottish dancing and modern dance. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Maybe Pedro and Buddy, the same-sex penguin pair at the Toronto Zoo, might want to think about hiring agents.

The story about the cute and cuddly-looking male African penguins who are inseparable, has gone viral on the Internet. Pedro and Buddy's tale is being carried by outlets such as Time magazine, ABC and the Daily Mail in the U.K. Taiwan's NMA TV has even produced an animated video about the pair.

The Toronto Zoo plans to separate Buddy and Pedro to mate with other female African penguins there, because the penguins are endangered.

A video of the penguins uploaded to YouTube had more than 70,000 views by yesterday evening.

RENE JOHNSTON/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The story has captured the imagination of so many people, said Bill Rapley, the zoo's executive director of conservation, education and wildlife.

Before Buddy, 20, met Pedro, 10, in an all-male flock in Toledo, Ohio, Buddy had a female partner for 10 years and even produced a few offspring, said Tom Mason, the Toronto Zoo's curator of birds.

Since "pair-bonding'' in Ohio and later moving to Toronto in May to join a group of 10 other male and female African penguins for breeding purposes, Buddy and Pedro have barely left each other's side.

But in a few weeks they'll be paired up with younger females in the group, Buddy with Farai, 3, and Pedro with Thandiwey, 4.

Italy's PM to resign for 'good of the country'

- Italy's $2.6 trillion debt too big for Europe to bail out
- No guarantee of new credible government: Analyst

VINCENZO PINTO/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Italy's Berlusconi promises to resign.

Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi conceded yesterday he no longer had the support to govern and announced he would resign like his Greek counterpart, becoming the biggest political casualty yet of the European debt crisis.

Berlusconi promised to leave office after Parliament passes economic reforms demanded by the European Union to keep Italy from sinking into Europe's debt mess. He came to the decision hours after a vote on a routine piece of legislation made it clear he no longer commanded a majority in the lower Chamber of Deputies.

A vote on the reform measures is planned for next week, giving Berlusconi a few more days before his turbulent 17 years in public life — and a political era in Italy — draw to a close. Over the years, Italy's political establishment watched as the media mogul survived sex scandals and corruption charges while branding his opponents communists, traitors and terrorists.

Both Italy and Greece are under heavy pressure to reassure financial markets that the 17-country eurozone is moving quickly to reduce crippling government debts before they break apart the monetary union and plunge the world into a new recession.

Berlusconi took the humiliating step of asking the International Monetary Fund to monitor the country's reform efforts in a bid to reassure markets. Today, a separate European Union monitoring mission is to begin work in Rome to review measures taken so far.

The EU's questionnaire, put to Italy ahead of the mission, said additional measures will be needed beyond what Italy has pledged to do to balance the budget by 2013.

Once Berlusconi resigns, Italian President Giorgio Napolitano will begin consultations to form a new government. The most widely discussed name to lead a government is Mario Monti, the former EU competition commissioner.

A usually defiant Berlusconi acknowledged he no longer has a parliamentary majority and said he will step aside for the good of the country.

"Things like who leads or who doesn't lead the government" are less important than doing "what is best for the country.

Greek talks drag on

Former Central Bank VP the most likely to become new prime minister

A new Greek interim government will be announced this afternoon, a government official said, after critical power-sharing talks between the country's two main parties dragged into a third day despite intense European pressure.

Negotiations between Prime Minister George Papandreou and opposition leader Antonis Samaras began Monday to resolve a political crisis that is threatening to cut Greece's loan lifeline and could even force it out of the euro. A government official said Papandreou would visit the country's president by around midday.

Transsexual, gay man enter Polish parliament

A transsexual woman and an openly gay man took seats in Poland's newly elected parliament yesterday, historic firsts that reflect profound social change in this traditionally Roman Catholic country.

Anna Grodzka, who was born a man but underwent a sex change, entered the assembly hall to warm greetings. Several men and women shook her hand, while one male lawmaker kissed her on the cheek. She was later introduced to Prime Minister Donald Tusk, who also shook her hand.

Grodzka sat next to Robert Biedron, an activist who is the first openly gay person elected to Poland's parliament. Both belong to Palikot's Movement, a new progressive party that became the third-largest party in parliament in the Oct. 9 election.

Grodzka said she felt overwhelmed by emotion.

Deputy betrayed Osama: Book

Former SEAL purports to tell the real story of how the al-Qaida leader died Says bin Laden's own physician, Ayman al-Zawahiri, set him up

A new book about the May 2 death of Osama bin Laden blows holes in earlier accounts and claims to be based on interviews with the elite commandos who were there.

"The primary sources for this history were the men of SEAL Team Six who told me what they saw, what they thought and what they felt," author and former SEAL Chuck Pfarrer writes in SEAL Target Geronimo: The Inside Story of the Mission to Kill Osama bin Laden. "Whenever possible, I have used their own words."

Pfarrer created pseudonyms for the chief players of the raid and described "Scott Kerr," the most-quoted commanding officer, as a composite character.

Among other revelations, Pfarrer says al-Qaida deputy Ayman al-Zawahiri betrayed bin Laden to the Americans, as he betrayed 9-11 mastermind Khalid Sheikh Mohammed.

Zawahiri, who was also bin Laden's personal physician, used a courier with a blown cover to communicate directly with the ailing, reclusive bin Laden. Immediately, "the Americans found him," Pfarrer writes.

U.S. Special Operations Command has denied Pfarrer had access to Team Six.

"To the best of my knowledge, neither USSOCOM nor any of its elements have reviewed the book Seal Target Geronimo," spokesman Ken McGraw said.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Other claims

- The Stealth Hawk helicopter did not crash-land on arrival at the compound, Pfarrer says. Only after bin Laden was killed and family and bodyguards rounded up did the copter crash as it was leaving.
- SEAL commandos did not engage in a 45-minute firefight on three floors of the compound, Pfarrer says. The first team in the 38-minute operation landed on the roof and went directly to bin Laden's bedroom. Another team first rounded up several children and others in a guesthouse, then blasted into the main floor.

THE WHITE HOUSE/GETTY IMAGES

Deadline passes to evict occupiers

- Camp in London, Ont., park crowded with people
- Some expected police to make move by early morning

ANGELA MULLINS
@METRONEWS.CA
METRO CANADA IN LONDON, ONT.

The vibe at Occupy London was more like a party than a police state yesterday evening as city officials welched on a promise to dismantle the camp at 6 p.m.

The mood was slightly tense as the deadline neared. Members of the occupation hurried about, moving many of their provisions — mostly plates, cups, food and water — into a tent they planned to lock arms and surround when police arrived.

Hundreds of people milled around the park as the last-minute preparations were made. Some stopped to read handmade signs explaining the occupiers' views, while others took seats on park benches and waited.

As 6 p.m. rolled past and nothing happened, people around the camp began playing drums, dancing, singing and chanting.

Tuxedage Maho, 18, of London, a vocal member of the occupation since Day 1, said he was pleased, but not surprised by the community reaction. As for why police had not moved in, he agreed with several others saying the city is "afraid."

"They are afraid of taking action. They are afraid of backlash," he said. "People support this movement. It's very underestimated."

Occupy elsewhere

- In Vancouver, municipal officials have asked a B.C. Supreme Court judge to expedite the legal process towards getting an injunction to move protesters from their encampment in front of the city art gallery.
- The City of Victoria also announced yesterday it has been granted a hearing on Nov. 15 to apply for a similar injunction.
- Calgary city council voted unanimously Monday night to start moving protesters out of Olympic Plaza.

Catholic Church may be held liable: Court

Woman pursuing claim against church says she was abused by reverend Church given permission to appeal

A British court has ruled that Roman Catholic priests are equivalent to employees, a decision that could pave the way for victims of sexual abuse to win damages from the church.

Yesterday's ruling involved a 47-year-old woman who says she was sexually assaulted by the Rev. Wilfred Baldwin when she was living in a Catholic children's home in Portsmouth, in southern England. The woman, whose identity is protected by a court order, is pursuing a claim for damages against the church. Baldwin died in 2006.

The church argued that Baldwin was not an employee, an argument rejected by Justice Alistair MacDuff.

The Portsmouth Roman Catholic Diocesan Trust, the defendant in the case, was given permission to appeal the ruling.

Elizabeth-Anne Gumbel, who represents the woman, said the issue for the trial judge would be whether the priest was acting in circumstances "closely connected" with his work as a priest.

Edward Faulks, a lawyer for the church, said the issue was a point of law and that the church was not seeking to shirk its responsibility in cases of sexual abuse.

Anne Lawrence, of the group Minister and Clergy Sexual Abuse Survivors, said she hoped that the ruling would lead to the settlement of "many hundreds of cases currently pending in courts." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Case details

- The woman's case is being tried in December, when another judge will have to make a further decision about the church's liability, Justice Alistair MacDuff said.
- "I only have to decide whether the nature of the relationship is one to which vicarious liability may — I emphasize 'may' — attach," he wrote.
- Vicarious liability is a legal doctrine that holds employers responsible for the actions of employees in some circumstances.

Work on Android began before iPhone: Schmidt

Google boss says it's not right to comment on Job's allegations in book that ideas stolen to build software

Google chairman Eric Schmidt yesterday defended his company as a great innovator despite allegations from late Apple co-founder Steve Jobs that the Internet search giant stole ideas from Apple's iPhone.

Schmidt also told reporters that he is still "very sad and recovering from the sense of loss" from Jobs' death last month and does not think it's right to comment on Jobs' words in Walter Issacson's biography.

CHIP SOMODEVILLA/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Eric Schmidt

In it, Jobs argues that Google Inc. stole from Apple's iPhone to build many of the features in Google's Android software for rival phones.

"I decided not to comment on comments that are written in the book after his death. I don't think it's right," Schmidt said, describing Jobs as a "fantastic human being" whom he "dearly" misses.

Schmidt served on the Apple Inc. board from 2006 to 2009 but quit as Google and Apple went head-to-head in smartphones — Apple with its iPhone and Google with its Android software.

"Most people would agree that Google is a great innovator, and I would also point out that the Android efforts started before the iPhone efforts. And that's all I have to say," Schmidt said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUST SAYIN' ...

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

Imagine the world is crazy.

It's easy if you try.

In fact, the world is now crazier than anything John Lennon could imagine when he wrote that song.

For example, Lennon probably never imagined that an Alberta dentist would pay $31,200 for his rotten, tartar–infested molar at an auction.

The tooth in question is in such bad condition it can't be DNA-tested. But its provenance is secure. Lennon gave it to his housekeeper to dispose of. She kept it and gave it to her daughter instead. Now the family has sold it to the Tooth Fairy, a.k.a. Michael Zuk, who plans to enshrine it in his waiting room back in Red Deer, along with other historical artifacts, such as stale-dated copies of National Geographic and Canadian Dental Quarterly.

"Every medieval church worth its steeple harbours a shrivelled nose or finger bone, and although no one can actually prove they're parts of a saint, these holy bits and pieces still attract pilgrims, who hope some of that venerated mojo rubs off on them."

I write this every week, it seems: I am not making this up.

If there was any doubt that celebrities have become the new saints of the reality-show religion, that has been dispelled by this latest dubious purchase.

Every medieval church worth its steeple harbours a shrivelled nose or finger bone, and although no one can actually prove they're parts of a saint, these holy bits and pieces still attract pilgrims, who hope some of that venerated mojo rubs off on them.

John Lennon tried to imagine a world without religion. But we just can't help ourselves. We need to have a higher power — someone to watch over us. It helps to have access to that power, hence the attraction of holy relics. People still believe in the Shroud of Turin, even though it's most certainly a medieval fraud.

But John Lennon's rotten tooth? The martyred Beatle once got himself into hot water for declaring that the Beatles were more popular than Jesus Christ. Imagine he was right. Still, it's no weirder than the shock of Elvis hair that went for $100,000 or Cher's bra that went to the Hard Rock Cafe, or Britney Spears' wad of chewed gum that generated a $14,000 bid on eBay. (Also offered: her half-eaten corn dog and egg-salad sandwich. Yuck.)

Clearly, if you're famous, even for 15 minutes (like Britney), every chunk is priceless. Michael Zuk may have $31,000 less, but he does have an indisputable chunk of the greatest Beatle. Paul McCartney's probably going, "I wonder how much one of my decayed molars is worth?"

Not as much as John Lennon's, pal. Imagine the rest of him is in heaven. We take what we can get.

Worth mentioning

In some areas of Israel, women have been shunted onto separate sidewalks, and buses and health clinics have been gender-segregated. The military has considered reassigning some female combat soldiers because religious men don't want to serve with them.

This is the new reality in parts of 21st-century Israel, where ultra-Orthodox rabbis are trying to contain the encroachment of secular values on their cloistered society through a fierce backlash against the mixing of the sexes in public.

On the surface, Israel's gender equality bona fides seem strong, with the late Golda Meir as a former prime minister and Tzipi Livni as the current opposition leader. But the World Economic Forum recently released 2009 data stating Israeli women earned two-thirds what men did.

Secularists in Israel worry that their lifestyles could be targeted because the ultra-Orthodox population is growing.

Their high birthrate of about seven children per family is forecast to send their proportion of the population, now estimated at nine per cent, to 15 per cent by 2025.

Peacocks, prostitutes and pot found in Mexico prison

Authorities say a surprise search at an Acapulco prison in Mexico has netted two peacocks, 100 fighting cocks, 19 prostitutes and two sacks filled with marijuana.

Police in the Mexican resort city also found dozens of televisions, several bottles of alcohol and knives.

Martinez didn't say how the women, birds and the other banned objects got into the prison.

He referred to the peacocks as "pets."

The resort city has been plagued by crime since last year when gangs began fighting for control after the arrest of Edgar Valdez Villarreal, also known as "La Barbie."

According to Sky News, Guerrero state has the third highest rate of murders in the country, falling behind Chihuahua and Nuevo Leon, both of which are northern border states. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fresh eyes on Edgar

J. Edgar writer Dustin Lance Black tries to cast the famed FBI leader in a light like no other before Shows the superstar status Hoover carried

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

After winning an Oscar for his screenplay for Milk, another biopic should have been a piece of cake for Dustin Lance Black. Of course, the life of infamous FBI leader J. Edgar Hoover is no ordinary biography — especially given Hoover's penchant for secrecy about pretty much everything in his life, including his rumored lifelong love affair with Clyde Tolson.

The film covers a wide span of Hoover's life. When you were writing it, did you know it would be played by Leonardo DiCaprio?

No, in fact I try not to consider casting when I'm writing — especially a biopic like this, when I don't have the opportunity to meet the real guy. It's enough work to try and figure out who he was and get a handle on how he might've been, how he might've talked, the things he might've been thinking and feeling, his behaviour — you know, all that's tough enough.

At what point did you know Leonardo DiCaprio would be playing the part?

Things moved very quickly once I turned in the script. Brian Grazer got it to Clint Eastwood, and while Clint was reading it I got a phone call from my lawyer — who works at the same firm Leo's represented by — and they said, 'Hey, you're not showing this to anyone else, are you?' I mean, I was very excited that it was Leo, if that's what you want to know about, because this movie was supposed to be about subverting some expectations — confirming some things and subverting others — and one of them was this was a young man who was very promising and handsome, and starlets did throw themselves at him and he could get the best seat at the best club in New York when he went. People don't think of Hoover like that.

GQ Australia

Going to war with Australia

Questions Dustin Lance Black was none-too-pleased when GQ Australia asked Twilight star Taylor Lautner if Black and openly gay director Gus Van Sant had made a pass at him when the trio had dinner recently. And while the magazine defended itself by claiming they were making light of Lautner's universally accepted hotness, Black still found their apology satisfactory. "They apologized," he says.

DUPLICATING ORIGINALS

IN FOCUS

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Ben Affleck did it. So did Eddie Murphy and Charlie Chaplin. Heck, Alec Guinness did it eight times, including once as a woman. This weekend in Jack and Jill, Adam Sandler adds his name to the list of actors who have played multiple roles in the same film.

"In Jack and Jill I play me," says Sandler, "and I play my twin sister. The man version of me is doing OK; he has a family out in L.A. The twin-sister version of me lives out in the Bronx and comes out to L.A. for Thanksgiving and then refuses to leave."

The idea of playing more than one role in a movie dates back to the Mary Pickford 1918 weepy Stella Maris. In it she plays the wealthy title character and the uneducated orphan Unity Blake. The studio balked at her insistence on playing both roles, but Pickford insisted. As Stella she was photographed like a glamorous movie star, but as Unity she wore unflattering makeup and was shot from her right, less photogenic, side. Scenes where the two characters shared the screen were achieved through double exposure.

Since then everyone from Mel Brooks (he was President Skroob and Yogurt in Spaceballs), to David Carradine (remember him in Circle of Iron as The Blind Man, Monkeyman, Death, and Changsha?) to Peter Sellers (who played as Group Captain Lionel Mandrake, President Merkin Muffley, and Dr. Strangelove in Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb) have taken on multi-roles.

Perhaps because of their sketch comedy backgrounds, Eddie Murphy and Mike Myers often take on various roles in their films, but Alec Guinness, the actor best known in North America as Jedi knight Obi-Wan Kenobi, must hold the record for character changes in one feature-length movie.

In Kind Hearts and Coronets he plays no less than eight characters. In an acting tour de force he's easily recognizable in each part, but doesn't repeat himself from character to character. Instead he carefully constructs each, from the happy-go-lucky young photographer to the window-smashing suffragette Lady Agatha.

Rivaling Guinness's achievement is Buster Keaton who played every part — including a stagehand, a dance troupe, a full band and every member in the audience — in the 1921 short film The Play House.

To top it off he also took credit for every crew job including editor, director, writer and cameraman.

Chasing an outcome of income

Drake looking to Take Care of business on latest album ◆ Despite an early leak, a sales success still expected

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

▶ Drake

"Are these people really discussin' my career again, asking if I be going platinum in a year again?" he asks in the lead-off track, Over My Dead Body.

Well, yes, they are, because the Canadian rapper has talent on the mic. He combines venomous taunts with philosophical gems like "Jealousy is just love and hate at the same time," and, "You lose some, you win some, as long as the outcome is income." And yeah, both of these pearls are in that same first track.

Take Care will most likely end with an outcome of income, as it has guest stars galore that run the gamut from soul legends (Stevie Wonder lends his signature harmonica to Doing it Wrong) to guests that pop music powers-that-be would probably fine you if you didn't use somewhere, such as Rihanna, Nicki Minaj and Lil' Wayne.

When Drake is rapping, he gets to the point fast and his rhymes are often loaded with as many thoughts per minute as any vintage Dylan song, but the songs on Take Care are spacious, and one, Marvin's Room, Buried Alive even clocks in at more than eight minutes. He is also impressively smooth when he is singing.

The beats are tight, and the chorus hooks are spot-on, but the one-liners are really the biggest highlights of this album.

Our favourite?

"You ain't the only one that's trying to be the only one," he says in We'll Be Fine.

The only thing that is jarring on Take Care is when Drake changes the mood entirely. A song like Practice, will start as a smooth R&B jam, but then out of nowhere Drake will drop a line like, "Girl, you look good, why don't you back that ass up?"

Well, this approach has probably worked for Drake in his romantic practice, and it will probably work for him in his career too.

Inside the mind of Darrell Hammond

SNL star pens book about his life as an addict and being abused by his mom
Memoir isn't a depressing read

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

No one was more shocked than Darrell Hammond when Donald Trump appeared on CNN to discuss the comedian's life.

"I mean, that's like, through the looking glass," Hammond says. "That's like, J.Lo-level. I'm a little stunned by it."

But when you probe into Hammond's life through his new memoir, God, If You're Not Up There, I'm F*cked, all the attention makes sense.

Though the public already knew Hammond for his spot-on impressions of Sean Connery and Bill Clinton, performed during his 14 years on Saturday Night Live, the book reveals shocking details of his personal life as an addict who suffered years of abuse from his mother as a kid.

"In staying silent all those years — most of the time because I didn't really know, because all those memories were repressed — it made me sick. And when people get sick, they exhibit abhorrent behaviour," Hammond says.

"The thing that occurs to me is that abhorrent behaviour is not an airborne virus. You don't get it because you sat on the wrong toilet seat in the subway station.

Something has to occur to have caused it. Suddenly I realized I'm not ashamed of this at all. I've been knocked down on the canvas a number of times and I've never not gotten up."

The book details not only behind-the-scenes moments at SNL, but also darker times, like when Hammond was escorted offset in a straight jacket.

"In staying silent all those years — most of the time because I didn't really know, because all those memories were repressed — it made me sick. And when people get sick, they exhibit abhorrent behaviour."
DARRELL HAMMOND

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Darrell Hammond

Now sober and with future plans to appear on TBS's Are We There Yet? Hammond can recall the pain of previous years from the perspective of a man who is finally healing.

"I have a very banal little life," he says happily. "I have a modest apartment and I visit my friends in the diner. Nothing really exciting happens at all, which is fine.

It's nice to not be living in fear of your voice mail — really dark figures that you meet, creatures of the night when you're crawling around the West Village between 4 and 6 a.m.

I call that neighbourhood the hell mouth because that's where I would meet people that could take me to places where I didn't need to go, but I was going to go to anyway.

None of this was going to stop until I stopped being angry."

iPad, can you read me a bedtime story?

GINA ANGELOTTI
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Do you recall when you first heard the words "and they all lived happily ever after"?

For many, it was a time when storytelling was a daily ritual and a window to a world where everything was possible.

Now it's even easier to rediscover that sensation. For Generation Y, tapping into nostalgia is as simple as tapping a finger on an LCD screen.

Smart devices offer them unlimited access to the cultural references that shaped their lives.

A survey by comScore in April revealed 18 to 34 year-olds represent nearly half of all iPad owners.

Not surprisingly, then, this tech-savvy age group is the driving force behind increasing audiobook sales — up 40 per cent so far this year according to Megan Fitzpatrick, senior manager of Hachette publishing's audio division.

No longer just convenient for a long road trip or commute, audiobooks fill a void. Sure, these mp3s feed a hunger for instant gratification, but they also satisfy the innately human tradition of oral storytelling.

It's an old idea resurrected for new media. And in an era of more options but less leisure time, audiobooks encourage listeners to multitask.

Although they're often accused of having short attention spans, Fitzpatrick argues that young audiobook listeners actually tend to be avid readers, adding that they prefer unabridged titles.

"Audiobooks take active engagement, compelling listeners to pay attention to every word and to the cadence of the language," she says. Moreover, the "cinematic totality" of a narration with high production values can turn otherwise apathetic readers into literary connoisseurs.

Hef talks up Lilo's pictorial

Hugh Hefner is excited about Lindsay Lohan's upcoming appearance in Playboy, saying the actress' all-revealing photo spread is "classy, very classy," he tells the Insider. "It's a classic tribute inspired by the original Tom Kelly nude pictorial of Marilyn Monroe, a portion of which was the original playmate in the very first issue of Playboy."

And readers will be treated to Lohan's words as well. "The pictorial is absolutely fantastic and very tasteful," Lohan's rep says, "and will be accompanied by an interview that will let readers see another side of Lindsay." METRO

Melissa McCarthy promotes Ivory — and jumpsuits

She was by far the funniest and most likeable Bridesmaid Now the Mike & Molly star is starting her own plus-sized clothing line

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

After she took the stage to launch Ivory Soap's new Soap Dish Facebook community for moms in New York City on Monday night — and was presented with a giant bar of Ivory carved in her likeness — Melissa McCarthy took a few moments to chat with Metro about the possibility of a sequel to Bridesmaids, the summer blockbuster that made her a household name.

"[It's a] yes for me, [but I] don't know that it's happening," she told us.

"I'll basically show up anywhere with those women — even if it's like a long bus trip, I'll go with them — but no talk of it yet. I think everyone's so busy. But I wouldn't mind it down the road just because I love that group."

McCarthy is indeed keeping very busy.

Not only did she win an Emmy this year for her sitcom Mike & Molly, but she's also developing her own clothing line for plus-sized women.

"It's so preliminary right now. I know I want a jumpsuit in it. I'm not afraid of it. I love a jumpsuit."

And when we asked if she's creating the line to be a role model for girls who aren't a size zero, the awesome actress just laughs.

"No, I think I'm just selfishly making it for myself!"

She elaborates: "I want separates, for the love of God, because everything's like a bad prom dress. You can find a million bad sleeveless dresses in satin. I'm like, 'Where's a good blouse and great trouser?'"

On Biebs: 'He's cute, isn't he?'

While Justin Bieber is reportedly prepared to take a paternity test to disprove a fan's claim he fathered her 4-month-old son, he's not waiting to voice his displeasure at the scandal.

"There's been a lot of crap on the Internet lately, but I've pulled through," he told press at the MTV Europe Music Awards in Belfast, Ireland over the weekend, according to Hollyscoop.

Bieber's girlfriend, Selena Gomez — who was hosting the event — was less inclined to address the issue.

"He's cute, isn't he?"

Big Apple shopping

The holiday season in New York kicks off with American Thanksgiving The city celebrates the upcoming retail-mad months with glittering events, jolly gift markets and traffic-stopping window displays Try one-stop shops to maximize gift-buying time

EMMA E. FORREST
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

New York is one of the most iconic places for Christmas shopping. Not only does the city display how to shop for the holidays in style, but the shopping season starts early, too.

Holiday shopping in the Big Apple kicks off with the Thanksgiving Day festival, on the third Thursday of November. The festival is marked by the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, a colourful event that snakes all the way across Manhattan to the famous department store.

The next day is one of the biggest shopping days of the year — Black Friday. This crazy day of sales takes place on the Friday after Thanksgiving Day, with bargain-hunters taking the day off work to line up overnight to catch the best discounts.

From then on, it's open season on the shopping front. There are several holiday markets offering a mix of gift ideas. Bryant Park is home to booths selling clothes, quirky gifts, crafts and jewelry at The Holiday Shops (Until Jan. 8, theholidayshopsatbryantpark.com). You'll find more than 100 red and white booths selling affordable gifts, as well as vouchers for local stores, at the Union Square Holiday Market (Nov. 18 to Dec. 24, urbanspacenyc.com) and Columbus Circle Holiday Market at the south west entrance of Central Park (Nov. 30 to Dec. 24, urbanspacenyc.com). If the weather is glacial, try the indoor gift fair in the elegant Vanderbilt Hall of Grand Central Station (Nov. 14 to Dec. 24, grandcentralterminal.com).

As well as providing a brilliant one-stop gift shop for time-poor tourists, department stores from Bloomingdales and Macy's to toystore FAO Schwartz compete to feature the most dazzling window displays during the festive season.

GAWK AT THE TREES

New York is full of decorated Christmas trees in the run-up to the big event, but the biggest one in the city is outside the Rockefeller Center. Every year the spruce is ceremoniously lit by a celebrity. Expect a star-studded event Nov. 30. rockefellercenter.com

My favourite spot in Canada

DEBRA DIGIOVANNI: VANCOUVER

It's easy to call Vancouver one of my favourite places in Canada; it's breathtakingly beautiful, has mild weather and a laid back attitude. But, instead — I came to my conclusion the way I always do — by judging its BOYS!

British Columbia in general has hot dudes — I think there's something in the west coast water — (that might make a good slogan for the province, btw) but it's the plethora of hotness in Vancouver that I speak of. The wonderful assortment of male eye candy holds something for everyone! My personal favourites are the granola boys — the earthy, hippies that ride bikes and shave much less than society wants them to. They love the earth and I love them! Not your cup of (green) tea? How about the bookish, Vancouver Film School-artist guys? They have dramatic glasses and laugh at my jokes. Sure, I outweigh them two times over, yet still, I LOVE!

Vancouver boys run in Stanley Park and they look like they have a guitar in the trunk of their Prius. They snowboard, hacky-sack and skateboard (these activities are all worth extra bonus points!). They're friendly with just enough pretention to make them interesting and they look good wet. What's not to love?! And Ryan Reynolds is from Vancouver… I rest my case.

CHIANG MAI, THAILAND
NOV. 5, 2011

My boys have begun to blend in. They walk into situations as strangers and within moments it's hard to imagine what the scene looked like before they were a part of it. It was true when they were giving alms to the monks in the morning, when they were teaching Frere Jaques to a kindergarten class, when they were climbing on stage to dance with Thai belles and now — kneeling in front of a senior monk and receiving his blessing. They are confident and assured. Totally, completely, naively, fearless.

MORE ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY

PRIUS V'S ADVANCED DESIGN DELIVERS UNRIVALLED FUEL EFFICENCY AND CARGO SPACE

Toyota's newly launched 2012 Prius v boasts more advanced technology that guarantees every last drop of fuel you pay for is used efficiently, meaning you get more kilometers on less fuel, thanks to the car's Hybrid Synergy Drive technology.

Developed by Toyota, the Hybrid Synergy Drive technology allows Prius v to operate in three modes — gas only, electric motor only or a combination of the two — and automatically allocates power in the most efficient way by switching back and forth from the gas engine to the electric motor thanks to a power split device. Essentially, it's like having three engines in one.

So, when you're starting the car, or driving at low speeds, Prius v is powered solely by the electric motor. If you find yourself stopped at a light, Prius v will automatically switch off to conserve fuel and electricity. Then, when you need to accelerate quickly, the electric motor re-starts automatically and teams up with the gas engine for a smooth acceleration. And when you're at higher speeds, the gas engine does most of the work while the electric motor kicks in when needed. The Hybrid Synergy Drive ensures each mode is operating at its peak efficiency.

The process might sound complicated, but it all boils down to the best combination of power and fuel efficiency. And no matter what mode is engaged, Prius v's advanced technology results in a smooth ride where you'll feel as though you're just gliding along the road.

Essentially, you get the best features of both a gasoline engine and an electric motor system in one car as well as much more cargo space. In fact, Prius v's cargo space rivals that of many SUVs, which use up far more fuel.

Aside from its unsurpassed fuel efficiency, the Prius v produces 66 per cent fewer smog-forming emissions than most conventionally powered new cars. In fact, although diesel vehicles can achieve high fuel efficiency as well, they are estimated to produce 17 times the amount of smog-forming emissions than cars with the Hybrid Synergy Drive technology.

The reasoning is simple. Toyota's HSD technology allows Prius v to use less fuel, and because of that, it produces fewer emissions. So, while your wallet benefits from driving a Prius v, the environment benefits as well. And that means a lot to environmentally conscious Canadians today.

The bottom line is Prius v offers drivers maximum drivability, outstanding fuel efficiency and enough cargo space to cope with the every day needs of Canadians. And with the holiday season almost upon us, who couldn't use some extra cargo space and fuel savings?

With Prius v, drivers no longer have to choose between fuel efficiency and versatility; they can enjoy the best of both in one car.

A set of digital readouts located on the ECO driver monitor provides constant feedback to the driver. You can instantaneously monitor your fuel consumption or use the Hybrid System indicator to help optimize your fuel efficiency

Prius v offers different modes for different types of driving. ECO mode helps reduce fuel consumption. EV mode runs solely on battery power for up to 1.6 kms under certain conditions. And Power mode increases gas pedal response for enhanced acceleration

THE PERFECT HYBRID

Toyota's 2012 Prius v truly is the perfect hybrid for all Canadians. It not only boasts more cargo space than the original, allowing drivers to reconfigure the back and front passenger seats to suit their needs, but it's good for the environment and offers great fuel efficiency, thanks to its advanced hybrid technology. Whether you're transporting sports equipment, loading bulky items from big box stores, helping a friend move, or packing the car full of passengers and luggage for a road trip, Prius v can handle anything you throw at it. Best of all, it's still an easy-to-handle mid-sized car that easily gets around the city.

Mickey heads to Hawaii

Disney's new Aulani Resort & Spa is a showcase for Hawaiian culture Located on 21 acres of oceanfront property in Ko Olina, just 27 kilometres from the Honolulu airport, this resort isn't just for kids

Kids

Day: At the heart of the resort is Waikolohe Valley, or "mischievous water," which will keep the little ones out of mischief. Designed around a lava outcropping are an 8,200-square-foot pool, a lazy river and a waterslide that twists in and out of rock formations. Menehune Bridge is an interactive water play area for younger kids, while the Menehune Adventure Trail keeps older kids occupied on a high-tech scavenger hunt.

Evening: When the sun sets, kids can take part in the Po La'ila'l sunset ceremony, which honours nature with chanting and music performed on Pu shells. Or head to the fireside Mo'olelo for a night of storytelling — complete with puppetry, props and magical effects — around a traditional Hawaiian fire pit.

Hidden Gem: Kids ages three to 12 can leave their parents at the door in Aunty's Beach House, where they can learn to hula, create arts and crafts, and play games with Disney characters. Tweens and teens can head to the beach for team-based games and scavenger hunts, or hang out in Painted Sky Spa (no adults allowed) with a yogurt bar, mixology station and computer access.

▶ The evening offers lots of entertainment for both adults and kids.

Families

Day: Snorkel with native Hawaiian fish, including angelfish, butterfly fish and tangs, in the private 3,800-square-foot Rainbow Reef snorkel lagoon. Then head to the Makai Preserve conservation pool, where you can learn about — and pet — gentle stingrays.

Evening: The Starlit Hui blends traditional Polynesian and modern entertainment — from hula dancers to Disney characters. Or sit in the garden and watch a classic Disney movie under the stars, beside the ocean.

Hidden Gem: If you want to explore the island, try any number of excursions offered at the resort, from dolphin spotting on a catamaran to surf lessons from the Honolulu City Firefighters. For the adventurous, kayak on Kailua Bay and hike on a nearby island and bird sanctuary, or go on a nighttime ghost tour of the island's most haunted places.

ALL PHOTOS: SUPPLIED

Adults

Day: Unwind in the adults-only Laniwai Spa, a "freshwater heaven" designed around the Hawaiian reverence for nature. The spa features an outdoor co-ed hydrotherapy garden, complete with herbal pools, reflexology path, rain showers, and hot and cold whirlpools. Try the signature Kilikili treatment, which consists of a traditional Hawaiian Lomilomi massage under jets of warm water.

Evening: Chill out in a sunset-facing hot tub; then sip a Pineapple Papaya Cosmo or Big Wave Golden Ale in the 'Olelo Room lounge, inspired by the "art moderne" style of the 1940s. Or, sample oysters, prawns and lobster with the signature Feast of the Sea platter at Off the Hook, an open-air restaurant.

Or, for a romantic dinner for two, drop the kids off at Aunty's (or reserve one of the resort's babysitters) and head to beachside AMA AMA, featuring contemporary, sustainable Hawaiian fare. Try the signature dish: a salt-crusted catch for two.

Explore Hawaii by boat

@HELLMICHELLE/FLICKR

Kauai is one of Hawaii's least-visited islands Get a close-up look at this paradise on a catamaran

Kauai is the northernmost of Hawaii's islands and gets fewer visitors than Oahu, the Big Island or Maui. Many of those who do visit see it only through the lens of a kitschy luau or a dinner theatre production of South Pacific, where they're herded directly from cruise ships. But there are other ways to experience Kauai, untamed and authentic.

One of them is to tour the island's northwest coast aboard a catamaran.

You can't tour it by car because there aren't any roads. You can see it by helicopter, but it can be pricey.

Some adventurous visitors kayak, but the coastal route is some 26 kilometres long. Or you could hike the dramatic and scenic Kalalau Trail, but it's steep and can be muddy and slippery as you climb from high cliffs and back down to the ocean. The base of the trail also gets crowded, with limited parking spots filling up early.

Another way to sightsee is to drive through Kauai's Waimea Canyon, ending up at Kokee State Park, which offers a spec-

Several companies offer the catamaran trips. Na-Pali Sea Breeze Tours is one of those companies. At $150, it isn't cheap, but it's worth the splurge for the morning-long adventure.

The hosts will point out the sights and relate local history and lore.

You'll pass Tunnels Beach, where surfer Bethany Hamilton lost her arm in a shark attack in 2003; the spot that once housed Taylor Camp, a hippie commune run by Elizabeth Taylor's brother; caves where native Hawaiians sheltered their canoes from strong winds, and the cliffs where they buried their chiefs.

On a lucky day, passengers will see birds diving into the ocean, as well as dolphins and whales.

At some points, the captain my nonchalantly point to the outline of a shark. At other points, he steered the boat into a cave.

After a while, you will stop where some other boats are anchored in the shadows of the cliffs and jump in for a swim.

There is snorkel gear for those who want it, then lunch on board — sandwiches and pineapple.

The excursion finished, you will return to Anini Beach around noon.

A note to winter visitors: Though the Sea Breeze goes out year-round, November to March departures are dependent on the weather and surf conditions of the day.

Chicago's past laughs

RHYS ASPLUNDH/FLICKR

▶ Chicago's history has become the focus of a new Second City show.

Second City teams with the Chicago History Museum for a show that touches on the city's past and present Watch out Al Capone and Oprah!

Imagine a city where winters are frigid enough for polar bears, where a baseball team is so woebegone it hasn't won the World Series since Ford Model Ts first puttered down the streets and where electoral shenanigans are summed up in the cheeky phrase, "vote early, vote often."

Find any of that funny?

How about a city where a disgraced governor swiveled his hips and crooned an Elvis tune at a street fair? Where a mayor, staging a debate during the Roaring '20s, placed live rats in cages to represent his opponents? And where the late columnist Mike Royko, referring to the tradition of political chicanery, once suggested Chicago's motto, Urbs in Horto (City in a Garden), be replaced with Ubi Est Mia (Where's mine?).

Laughing yet?

Pick a topic: Winter. Traffic. Sports. Politics. Most definitely, politics. In Chicago, all are good for a joke.

And soon the Second City comedy club — famed for its satire and improvisation — will use this fodder, as it turns its wit on the city itself. It has partnered with the Chicago History Museum, consulting with curators, performing a series of workshops and soliciting suggestions from audience members to shape a script that will touch on the present and the past.

The finished product, Second City's History of Chicago, previewing in December, will likely lampoon familiar territory, such as the weather, notorious traffic jams and some famous modern-day names: The mayors Daley. The new boss, Rahm Emanuel. The California-departed TV talk show host Oprah Winfrey.

The writers will also explore places and characters that have defined Chicago over the decades. Al Capone, of course. But others best-known to the locals, such as Matthias "Paddy" Bauler, the top-hat-wearing, alderman-saloon keeper who left his mark with his cri de coeur: "Chicago ain't ready for reform!" And Bughouse Square, a park that became famous as a public soapbox for leftist orators.

No matter what makes the cut, the show will reflect a brand of humour unique to Chicago, says Kelly Leonard, Second City's executive vice-president.

"It is all about the intersection of high brow and low brow," he says. "It's a place in which Mike Ditka (the former Chicago Bears football player and coach) and the University of Chicago have basically equal standing, and the smashing together of those two make Chicago such a funny place to live in. If you think about some of the quintessential Second City characters — Bill Murray, George Wendt, John Belushi — they all have a kind of blue-collar wisdom to them."

Soliciting smirks

To prepare for this show, Second City cast members rehearsed at the History Museum, just a few blocks from the comedy club. They invited the public and tour guides to watch, solicited suggestions and added their own ideas after poring over exhibits in the museum.

Put these places on your bucket list

Lonely Planet has chosen Canada's Maritime provinces as one of the top 10 regions in the world to visit in 2012, citing the area's newfound appeal for food-minded travellers.

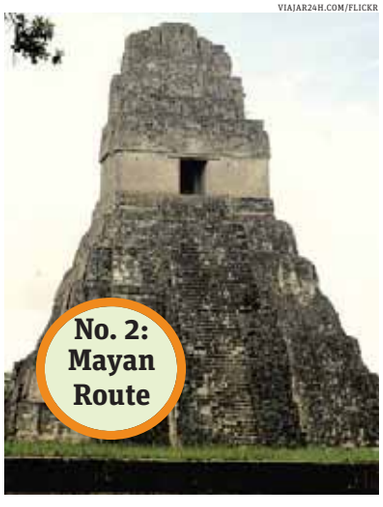
Distilleries that turn P.E.I. potatoes into "silky vodka," organic wineries that crush Nova Scotia grapes, oyster cafes, mushroom-foraging tours and cheese-making classes are among the attractions, the guidebook publisher says.

As well, the Maritimes — ranked seventh on the list — will be marking the 100th anniversary of the Titanic disaster next year.

In the No. 1 spot is coastal Wales, which will see the completion in 2012 of the All Wales Coast Path.

The Mayan Route — spanning the Yucatan Peninsula and Chiapas in Mexico, as well as Belize, Guatemala and Honduras — is No. 2. "Maya mania" surrounding end-of-the-world prophecies has put the region in the spotlight.

VIAJAR24H.COM/FLICKR



No. 3 is northern Kenya, where a huge road construction project is underway.

Next year might be the last chance to experience "one of Africa's greatest adventures in all its dusty and pot-holed glory," says Lonely Planet.

(Note, however, that Canada's Department of Foreign Affairs advises against all travel to northeast Kenya within 150 kilometres of the Somali border due to the risk of kidnapping and attack.)

It's been a pleasure doing business

STUDENT VOICE

VERED BEN
TALENTEGG.CA

I began working well before I started university. I loved working with children and found summer and after-school jobs first as a babysitter, then at a camp and then at a daycare. After high school, I travelled and took courses abroad and came back around the winter semester.

Since I intended to pursue a kinesiology arts degree, I enrolled in courses to become certified as a personal trainer and pilates instructor. I knew it would be difficult to find a well paying part-time position as a student and I realized that being certified would allow me to earn money to pay for my education and also gain relevant experience during my studies in kinesiology.

Soon after I became certified, I was excited to find a job at a local gym. But, when I returned to school full-time, my schedule often conflicted with work and it was difficult to balance both. So I quit my job.

PROVIDED

▶ Vered Ben wants students to realize that with a passionate idea and a little guidance from mentors, banks and school, anyone can start a successful business.

I realized that starting my own fitness equipment and fitness apparel business might be a great idea since it would allow me to create my own work schedule. I did a little bit of further research on how one starts their own business and I discovered that it would require a lot of money, time and space — none of which I had.

Since I always loved making jewelry and designing, I decided that for the time being I would sell accessories. I found several suppliers, designed my website and logo with a major design company, and then launched my accessories business, vered-ben.com In my third year as a student, I finally felt ready to pursue my passion in the fitness and health industry. I started V2Be, a fitness training program for women and girls. I developed a curriculum and launched an after school fitness program that focuses on healthy living and self-esteem building for children.

It has definitely been a challenge combining school with business, but it is absolutely amazing to have the flexibility of creating my own schedule and deciding how much work I want to put in and when. Although I am only doing this business part-time, I have the option of pursuing it full-time when I graduate.

Most career centres and schools focus a lot on grades, career options and resumés, and usually do not let students think outside the box when it comes to job searching. I think schools should help students see that working for yourself can be a great option.

Become a workplace rockstar

Within that suit is a smartypants waiting to sing a song of success

Five tips to tapping into your inner genius

MEREDITH ENGEL
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

ISTOCK

▶ Don't be afraid to get loud and express your true self.

It doesn't require any superhuman abilities to excel at your workplace, says Gina Rudan, author of Practical Genius.

Take note as Rudan lists her five steps to turn you into the worker everyone wants to be.

Identify your genius

"Take time to do a self-diagnosis of the six ingredients that I argue contribute to genius: values, passion, creative abilities, strength, skills and expertise.

Think, 'in my own life, what are my values, creative abilities and passions?' I consider those to be a person's soft personal assets.

People have been conditioned to focus on their professional identity, so they don't really think about their values.

Then I ask them to think about their professional hard assets, which are strengths, skills and expertise. When I ask people about to tell me their strengths, a lot of people know because this is what they are measured against in their performance evaluations.

"You think only the logic, strategic and professional side of who you are matters at work, but that is no longer the case. The whole self matters."

GINA RUDAN
AUTHOR OF PRACTICAL GENIUS

The next challenge is to identify where the soft and the hard intersect. That, to me, is where genius resides: It's between the heart and the mind, between what you love and what you are good it.

A lot of us check half of ourselves at the revolving doors of our offices — we can no longer do that if we want to be competitive, innovative.

You think only the logic, strategic and professional side of who you are matters at work, but that is no longer the case. The whole self matters."

Surround yourself with genius

"Look at who you are spending your time with. Sometimes, you have to remove people. That is the hard reality."

Express your genius

"'Express' is about telling your true story. Check out your resumé. Is it showing the whole picture, or just half of who you are?

If you have a blog, are you truly expressing all sides of yourself? Most of us only express one side of who we are: Moms tell mom stories. Lawyers tell lawyer stories. Doctors tell doctor stories. Expressing genius is about really sharing the full story of who you are, and learning how to play with the tools available for effective storytelling.

We are living in a communications-on-steroids environment, so expression today really matters, online and offline."

Sustain your genius

"This is about paying attention to what you eat, exercising and feeling the body. This is a lifestyle proposition. A lot of people know what they should be doing to stay healthy, but not a lot of people make the connection that if you don't take care of your body and mind, you are losing competitive advantage."

Market your genius

"Everyone has this bittersweet opposing force within them, which I call a 'paradox.'

Everyone should market their paradox. A lot of us try to conform and be one way, or be what our organization wants us to be. That's not appealing.

You need to out your difference, and that means that if you play in a band and you are a CEO, you need share that. If you are a lawyer who is also a former graffiti artist, well, that's fascinating. People care about how different you are, how unique you are."

Socially smart

- Yodas Your mentors
- Ambassadors: "Connectors," she says. "People who are going to introduce you to others and be your cheerleader."
- Fat brains: People under 30. "They are brilliant. I think that a 'fat brain' should sit on every corporate board. Multigenerational relationships work."

The whispers of a weak workplace

Trust is key to successful communication in an office

MONICA WEYMOUTH
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

ISTOCK

Sometimes, there is a definitive, neatly wrapped culprit for why a workplace is unhappy or unproductive — or, more often, both. Dennis Reina, a consultant and author, says problems can be traced back to a more elusive source: lack of trust.

"Trust is not just a nice thing to have — it's sound business. When people are not communicating openly with each other, when they're missing deadlines or withholding information and not admitting mistakes, clients don't get served," says Reina, who along with his wife and business partner Michelle Reina authored Rebuilding Trust in the Workplace and Trust and Betrayal in the Workplace.

And when it does become a problem, a lack of trust can ruin a job or even a business.

"Trust is not just a nice thing to have a— it's sound business."
DENNIS REINA
CONSULTANT AND AUTHOR

"When these issues aren't addressed, it becomes simply, 'that's the way it is around here,'" says Reina. "The good talent walks out the door, or worse yet they stay, and then they become the working wounded."

Acknowledge the effort of your co-workers or employees

"We spend most of our waking hours at work, and because of this, people want to know that it makes a difference to someone, somehow, somewhere. Specifically acknowledging a specific performance really speaks volumes."

Admit when you make a mistake

"When you admit your mistakes it shows that you're human and vulnerable, and it gives your employees or co-workers permission to admit theirs. You don't want to be blindsided and hear about mistakes from your clients and customers. It's important that it's safe to admit mistakes."

Arrive on time and hit deadlines

"The same people are consistently late. And what's the message? That you view yourself more important than the rest of the room. It sends a message that there's a lack of respect, or that you don't have it together enough."

JUDY WEIGHTMAN

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

It's no secret that college and university seniors are crazy busy. Unfortunately, there's one more thing they need to consider: The job hunt. "It is critical that students prepare ahead of time, especially in a tough economy," says Nick Schaefer, director of career services at Gwynedd-Mercy College in the U.S..

There are several elements to an effective job search, Schaefer explains. One of the most important is networking. "Networking is time-consuming and needs to begin earlier than later," Schaefer emphasizes.

In order to network effectively, you'll need to do some groundwork:

Panthers drive Gustavsson from Leafs' net with three soft goals en route to victory

PANTHERS	LEAFS

DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Jonas Gustavsson got pulled shortly after the Panthers scored their third goal last night.

The team was booed by its home fans for a second straight game after Jonas Gustavsson surrendered three soft goals during a 5-1 loss to the Florida Panthers last night.

It was the eighth straight game the Leafs were playing without Reimer, who is still experiencing concussion-like symptoms after getting hit by Habs captain Brian Gionta on Oct. 22. The team has provided no timetable for his return.

They were able to get by initially with Gustavsson and third-stringer Ben Scrivens, but haven't played with much confidence in front of either over the last week.

It certainly hasn't helped that Toronto's offence has been ice cold — the team endured a scoreless streak of 137 minutes 59 seconds before Phil Kessel scored his league-leading 11th goal in the third period once the game was already out of reach.

Jack Skille, Marco Sturm, Tomas Kopecky, Sean Bergenheim and Shawn Matthias had the goals for Florida (7-4-3), which is off to its best start since 1999-2000.

Kessel replied for Toronto (9-5-1).

The Leafs were looking to bounce back after being hammered 7-0 by Boston on Saturday night, but Gustavsson spotted the visitors an early lead. Skille had a wide open net for his first goal of the season at 9:45 after the Leafs goaltender slid well out of his crease.

Toronto looked poised to tie the game during a strong start to the second period that forced Panthers coach Kevin Dineen to call a timeout.

The rookie had a couple good moments — stopping former Leaf Kris Versteeg on a breakaway — but allowed goals to Bergenheim and Matthias in the third period. He might earn his third NHL start for Toronto's next game in St. Louis tomorrow night.

NBA players unwilling to accept proposed deal

Union seeks another meeting with owners

NBA players made it clear yesterday: No deal.

No fear of commissioner David Stern's ultimatum, either.

"The current offer on the table from the NBA is one that we cannot accept," players' association president Derek Fisher said.

Instead, the players said they will ask for another meeting with owners before Stern's deadline this afternoon — and sound willing to agree to a 50-50 split of revenues under the right circumstances — in an attempt to end the lockout and save the season.

In an interview on NBA TV, Stern said that whether he agrees to meet "would be guided by the labour relations committee."

NBA spokesman Mike Bass said the league has not yet heard from Hunter.

"The players are saying that we understand their position, but unfortunately we're not intimidated by all that"
UNION EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR BILLY HUNTER

A month of the season has already been lost, and the NBA risks losing fans without an agreement soon. Some already appear to have forgotten: Blake Griffin, last season's rookie of the year, stood around in the lobby of a busy hotel off Broadway and was rarely approached by fans.

The league's current proposal calls for players to receive between 49 per cent and 51 per cent of basketball-related income, though union officials argue it would be nearly impossible to get above 50.2 per cent.

"The players are clearly of the mind that it's an unacceptable proposal," union executive director Billy Hunter said. "But because of their commitment to the game and their desire to play, they're saying to us that we want you to go back, see if you can go back, get a better deal."

If players don't take the deal by 5 p.m., the next offer will call for salary rollbacks, a 53-47 revenue split in the owners' favour and essentially a hard salary cap. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Battery system & engine

The battery system — in fact the Hybrid's entire powertrain for that matter — has been lifted from the Hyundai Sonata Hybrid and consists of a 270-volt lithium-polymer battery that's claimed to be lighter and more durable than other types, such as the lithium-ion cells installed in the Chevrolet Volt and the Nissan Leaf electric cars.

The battery feeds a 40-horsepower electric motor that functions in tandem with a 166-horsepower 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine, for a combined 206 horsepower.

Comparison

The Optima Hybrid is capable of speeds up to 100 km/h on electric power alone, compared to 75 km/h for the Ford Fusion and for short bursts up to 40 km/h for the 2012 Toyota Camry Hybrid.

However, the Optima's estimated 5.6 l/100 km city and 4.9 highway fuel economy falls short of the Camry's 4.5/4.9 and the Ford Fusion's 4.6/5.4 city/highway ratings.

Fuel-sipping features

The Hybrid uses a special six-speed-automatic transmission that operates without a traditional torque converter, again a departure from most hybrid cars that use continuously variable transmissions. The top three gear ratios have been designed so that the engine runs at the lowest-possible engine speed to help save fuel.

The car also features low-rolling-resistance tires and an integrated starter-generator that shuts off the gas engine when the vehicle is stopped.

Can fuel-saving look this good?

If your passion for cars is matched only by your determination to avoid $1.25/litre fuel stops, the Kia Optima Hybrid appears to have been built just for you.

The Korea-based automaker, part of the Hyundai organization, has been aggressively introducing an array of new products at a relentless pace.

As a result, the company's adolescent-like growth spurt has rapidly brought it into the automotive mainstream where previously it had been considered just a bit player.

For the 2011 model year, Kia issued forth an all new Optima sedan, designed by former Volkswagen-Audi stylist Peter Schreyer who is credited with the look of Audi's A6 sedan and sporty TT coupe and roadster.

Since his arrival at Kia back in 2006, the brand's design "language" has headed off in a completely different direction from parent Hyundai's.

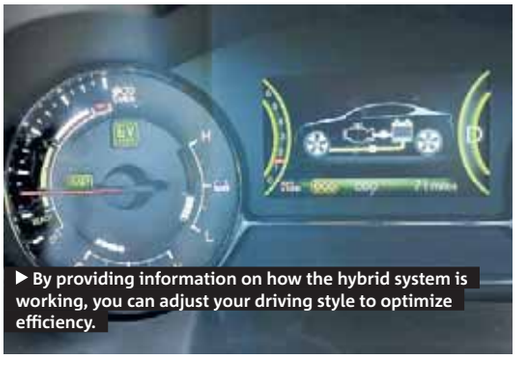
Both mid-size four-door sedans appear nearly identical, yet the Hybrid features a slightly different grille, unique 16-inch wheels and extra lower cladding, LED (Light Emitting Diode) tail lamps and a Hybrid badge affixed to the trunk lid.



▶ By providing information on how the hybrid system is working, you can adjust your driving style to optimize efficiency.

▶ A 166-horsepower four-cylinder is helped by a 40-horsepower electric motor to provide about 5.6 l/100 km in the city and 4.9 on the highway.

Optima Hybrid

What you should know about the 2012 Kia Optima Hybrid:

- Type: Four-door, front-wheel-drive sedan.
- Engine (hp): 2.4-litre DOHC I4 with 30-kilowatt electric motor (206, net).
- Transmission: Six-speed automatic.
- Market position: Hybrids are improving and becoming more affordable ... and even desirable. The Optima shares its platform with the Hyundai Sonata, so building in its hybrid powertrain makes perfect sense.
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 5.6/4.9.

Still sitting on the fence about winter tires? Want them, but don't know where to start? You're in the right place

ISTOCK

▶ Sufficient tread is essential for any tire to work properly and safely. An all-season tire with good tread depth is superior to a winter tire with its tread worn down.

A guide to winter tires

JIL MCINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

As the seasons change, so should your tires.

You've probably noticed that the nastier-weather varieties are now called winter tires, rather than snow tires. This isn't just the same product with a new name.

Winter tires provide superior traction in all types of winter conditions, from deep snow, to puddles, to dry pavement.

The main differences between tires are in their tread and rubber compounds. Winter treads are more aggressive so they can bite into snow, and push slush and water out of the way.

This is very important, since tires that don't properly channel water can create a situation, called hydroplaning, where the tire floats on top of puddles instead of maintaining contact with the asphalt below.

If your car hydroplanes, you don't have control of it.

The formulation of the rubber compound is also important, as rubber gets soft in the heat and hard in the cold — exactly the opposite of what you want it to do in your tire.

The softer compound in winter tires helps them to stick to the pavement, although it does make them wear faster, one of the trade-offs of good winter tires.

So-called "all-season" tires are halfway between summer and winter ones.

They're better described as "three-season" tires, since they're inferior to the performance of winter tires at a time when driving can be most treacherous. Some companies offer a new "four-season" version, which meets winter tire standards, identified on all tires that do so by a stylized logo of a mountain and snowflake moulded into the sidewall.

These four-season tires primarily use an all-season compound with a more aggressive tread, which will be noisier in summer and use more fuel.

Good tires aren't cheap, but the highest price doesn't always guarantee the most appropriate tire. Several consumer groups rate winter tires; in Canada, the Automobile Protection Association offers a free comparison chart of some 50 tires at APA.ca.

Switching to winter tires in the fall will not only improve the driving experience, but will extend the life of your all-season tires.

If your vehicle has large wheels, ask your tire dealer if it's possible to replace them with smaller steel wheels and larger-diameter winter tires, which will save money and also protect your expensive aluminum rims from salt damage.

7C

Seven is the magic number for tires. At just 7C, winter tires grip cold, dry pavement better than all-season tires, reducing your stopping distances and improving your vehicle's handling.

What type of winter driver are you?

Michelin recently conducted a survey to find out more about the different drivers on Canadian roads. Canuck drivers can be broken down into five different types, each needing specific help when it comes to tackling winter roads in Canada.

Worrywarts
Worrywarts lack confidence at the wheel and worry they are surrounded by drivers who are less cautious than they are. Worrywarts can sometimes get paralyzed and stop in the middle of an ice-covered hill, or incline. Stopping in such a situation is never advisable as you may not have traction to begin moving again. Smooth, steady pressure on the gas to maintain forward motion is the key to conquering slippery inclines.

Daredevils & The Fast and Confident
Daredevils love a thrill at the wheel, and they don't believe that speeding causes accidents. They love their cars and generally look after them with care. Similarly, the Fast and Confident aren't afraid to drive fast, but they also like feeling in control when at the wheel.

They are not intimidated by winter driving, because they rarely get stressed at the wheel. Both of these types of drivers should remember in the winter to significantly increase their following distance and anticipate longer distance for braking to avoid losing control and causing an accident.

Cautious Pragmatists
Cautious Pragmatists consider cars first and foremost as a method of transportation, a way to get from point A to point B. They are cautious at the wheel and follow the recommendations of their car manufacturer or mechanic for maintenance.

These drivers will always ensure that they have a fully-prepared car with essential equipment for the winter.

Aficionados
Aficionados love the automotive world and understand the characteristics of different cars. These drivers are aware that most cars today have up to three different electronic-control systems that assist in maintaining traction and control.

All drivers should know their strengths and weaknesses so they can drive more safely during the treacherous winter months. NEWS CANADA

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

Regardless of your personal prognostications about whether electric vehicles will or will not rule the roads in the near or far future, you have to admire the considerable conviction of Tesla's co-founder and CEO, Elon Musk.

The considerable fortune he made through PayPal and other ventures he then sunk into the Telsa electric vehicle adventure.

Soon after he took the company public last summer it purchased a huge factory, the ex-Toyota plant in Fremont, California.

By next summer the plant will begin shipping out production versions of the new Tesla Model S — an all-electric luxury sedan. While about 5,000 units will be built in 2012, Musk fully expects to be building and selling 20,000 units of Model S during 2013. In that year he also expects to build and sell an additional 15,000 units of Model X, a yet-to-be-introduced crossover based on the platform debuted by the Model S.

All this in a hairy economic market, and a marketplace where electric cars have yet to prove their mettle, business case, infrastructure requirements, consumer acceptance, etcetera, etcetera.

That, my friends, is a decisive, unwaffling, non fence-sitter kind of a guy. Unlike myself, of course, whose favourite joke is this one: "Do you have trouble making up your mind? Well, yes and no."

Last month, Tesla invited all its deposit holders to the plant, so they could witness in person the unveiling of the production-ready Model S. Over 3,000 made the trip and by all accounts, treated Musk like a rock star.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ The Tesla Model S is an all-electric luxury sedan. Its electric drivetrain is located between the two rear wheels. This allows the car to have two trunks — one in the front, in addition to the standard rear trunk. As for that front trunk, you can just call it a "frunk."

To keep the buzz going, Tesla has been taking the Model S to selected North American cities. Last week it landed in Toronto, and we decided to mosey on down to have a look.

First impression? It's a pretty car, but also a bit coy about its electric nature.

One of the Tesla's handlers, Camille Rickets, told me the look is purposely familiar, to help ease consumers into the electric movement. She noted that interior packaging is where the more dramatic gains of electric propulsion are leveraged. With battery cells packaged in the floor, and the entire electric drivetrain packaged between the two rear wheels, the rest of the vehicle can be utilized for people and stuff. Model S has a trunk at each end of the car and three rows of seats. (FYI, the "trunk" at the front is now called a "frunk.")

But the most dramatic feature of Model S is its incredible touch-screen interface — at 43 cm, it is about the size of two iPads.

"All the car controls are baked into this one touch-screen," says Rickets. And if you don't believe her, just go and try to find some buttons, switches or knobs… The sunroof even opens by sliding your finger down the screen.

"We really think this is going to be the future of interior car control," adds Ricketts, "because it's so easily updateable."

It can be easily updated because it is connected to the Internet via the 3G networks, allowing the car and driver to take advantage of any future software or application revelation.

Tesla also feels that vehicles are the new platform for application development, and is excited about working with app developers.

Charging standards will drive electric cars

Some things still need to be finalized concerning EVs

DRIVING FORCE

JIL McINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

It's possible to buy an electric car these days, but that doesn't mean they are yet in widespread use. The infrastructure to recharge them is still in its infancy, including some of the standards that will help to ensure uniformity.

Some standards have been determined but several still need to be finalized, says Ian Forsyth, director of corporate planning for Nissan, which makes the all-electric Leaf. Most buyers right now will be charging their vehicles at home, but eventually, widespread consumer acceptance depends on being able to top up the battery at public charging stations, the same way conventional cars can pull into gas stations.

"The receptacle on the car for charging is an SAE standard, that's established," Forsyth says.

"But the vehicle supply equipment, the interface between the car and the grid — those standards are not resolved. The cord, temperature resistance, the amperage rating of the unit itself, the waterproofness, other overload issues and all of those things are part of it."

CSA is the lead body for certification in Canada and is working on the standards, but they are not yet complete, Forsyth says.

JIL MCINTOSH/FOR METRO

▶ Nissan Leaf

"There's no risk (to electric cars) because we know what the standards will be, but they're not officially out there. It's one of those odd problems that happens with standards."

One important decision has already been made: universal plugs on charging stations.

"Every charging station will charge every electric vehicle in Canada," Forsyth says. When a car is plugged in, the car and station "talk" to each other.

Once it's determined that the car is plugged in and there is no fault, the power starts flowing.

Standards are being developed for "level 3" quick-chargers, which use direct current to charge a car in less than 30 minutes.

These are already in use in Japan, where a standard has been established, but are very rare in North America. Forsyth believes there is only one in Canada, located in British Columbia.

Setting standards is relatively simple in Canada and the U.S. compared with Europe, Forsyth says.

"Almost every country (in Europe) has a completely different way of connecting to the grid. Their plugs are different from country to country. Standardization not only deals with the car end of it, but the grid end.

240

Electric cars can charge on regular 110-volt household current, but charging them on 240-volt can cut the charging time by half or more.

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

One of the best ways to cut through upcoming winter driving conditions is in the lap of German engineered AWD luxury from the driver's seat of an Audi A8.

The last-generation of Audi's flagship sedan model was available from 2004 to 2010.

It packed plenty of space, 8- or 12-cylinder power and Quattro All Wheel Drive (AWD) on all models. Translation? The A8 can comfortably eat any of Mother Nature's nastiest winter conditions for lunch.

2004 to 2010 Audi A8

Engine

A8 came with a proven 4.2-litre V-8 developing between 330 and 350 horsepower.

A six-litre W-12 engine was also available with 450 horsepower.

What owners like

Owners rave about a sense of style, status and exclusivity, as well as a long list of safety features and the confidence of Quattro AWD.

Comfort, space and performance were all highly rated, too.

What owners dislike

Some owners wish their A8's were easier to park, and others wish for better fuel mileage. Finally, many A8 owners report a learning curve required to use the more advanced controls.

Common issues

Numerous Audi owner forums recommend avoiding the first year (2004) of this A8 generation, as it seems less reliable. The A8 should also be scrutinized for electrical problems, with shoppers advised to ensure all power accessories, readouts and lights work as expected. Avoid A8 models with the adaptive air suspension, which will be expensive to fix if it fails. As a bare minimum, visit an Audi garage and have your used A8 candidate checked for coolant, oil and transmission fluid leaks.

Verdict

If you're comfortable with the potential maintenance pricetag, a well-maintained A8 will deliver confident, year-round motoring enjoyment in one of the market's most highly envied large sedans.

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

JUSTIN PRITCHARD/FOR METRO

▶ Stretches of open road? Better buckle up.

BMW's sort of cut right to the point with their 1-Series M Coupe, so I'm going to do the same.

BMW's 'M' division took the regular 1-Series and tweaked it — adding significantly to the styling and performance of the standard car. It recently topped the AJAC Best New Sports and Performance Car Over $50,000 category, as voted by a panel of professional Canadian car reviewers.

Price as tested: $61,800

The 1M looks like a big deal. In gearhead circles, arriving somewhere in a 1M is like showing up to a party with your new best friend Brad Pitt. Power comes from a three-litre straight six twin-turbo engine with 335 ponies, which provides very potent acceleration that'll make the rear end squirm for grip through most of first and second.

Gears shift quickly via a short, tight six-speed shifter, and the sound from the exhaust system is sweet and saturating — even at idle. Stand on it, and the 1M blasts down the road quickly enough to make passengers drop F-Bombs. Even in sixth, squeezing the throttle summons a surge of torque that sends it sailing past slower traffic in a jiff.

There's no sissy stuff, here. You can't even get the 1M with a sunroof, foglamps, or an automatic. With the quick, heavy steering and track-tuned suspension, you've got a car that's well equipped to chew through straight stretches, corners and everything in between. You can feel everything the chassis is up to when you push the 1M hard.

Unfortunately, this is a car that thanks you for pushing it hard. It'll get the hearts of enthusiasts pumping faster than downing a family-sized poutine, and the performance is so obnoxious, it'll make you want to drive like you're from Montreal.

Watch for speeding tickets.

Inside, the tester got suede trim, a unique instrument cluster, and a mainly black colour scheme. It's all simple and focused. Wider folks may find the seats uncomfortable, and larger folks will find entry and exit tight. A little more at-hand storage would have been appreciated.

The loaded tester came at just over $61,000 — expensive in light of models that pack plenty more under-hood artillery for similar money, but a hell of a deal, too. For instance, the 1M is 90 per cent as fun to drive as a Porsche 911 GTS, but for half the price.

Put the 1M on your "To Test Drive" list if you're after a fast, focused, ferocious, no-b.s. performance weapon.
